A Handsome Present.

By far the most beautiful Christmas gift we have seen this year is one received by Mrs. S. J. Kirkpatrick from Mrs. Paul W. Kirkpatrick. It is a most faithful, natural and artistically grouped painting of roses. Never have we seen a subject handled with more exquisite skill and taste, each petal showing its particular characteristic; the shading and blending of colors are charming -in fact nothing is wanting to make it real save the perfume. Surely the worthy recipient is proud of such a present, and the donor equally so of her ability to represent so faithfully nature's treasures. This gem of art may be seen at Mathes and Patton's drug store for a short time.

Arrests Samuel Strickland, Charged with Forgery.

For the past few months several old penioners of this county have been very greatly annoyed by having their names signed to orders on various merchants by unknown parties. A clue as to the guilty ones was placed in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Tom. Radford, who, after working on the case several days, arrested Samuel Strickland, of the Fourth District. Strickland was scouting at the time, and a great deal of eaution and nerve was required to take him, as he was dred and eighty five books. A few more gifts armed with a rifle, and besides is known as a like this would put our library on equal fearless fellow. However, Tom caught him standing with those of the leading schools of off his guard, and before he knew what was up, had him in the bag. Strickland agreed to ome to town with the officer, and they both mounted the same horse, Strickland riding emed to have changed his notion about oth himself and Radford from the horse and under his feet; and then a tussle for mastery took place. Both being powerful men, they rolled and tumbled, but finally Radford got his pistol out of his pocket and dealt the in the shape of a story more than he did prisoner a stunning blow over the left eye which completely laid him out for the time. Taking advantage of this short recess, he ed in bringing him in. William Lowrence, also of the Fourth District, was so much interested in the welfare of the prisoner that he followed him and the officer to town, and into Dossers' store, where Strickland had been taken for the purpose of identification. Strickland was at once identified as the man who had passed two separate orders on the store, with the name of John Murray signed thereto, both of which turned out to be forged. Lowrence turned to go out but was immediately recognized by Abe Byrd as an accomplice of Strickand, having on the same day that the order was presented at Dossers' store, cashed a balance order for him by selling him a knife, He too was arrested. At trial on Tuesday before Sam, S. Kirkpatrick, J. P., both prisoers waived preliminary hearing, and were ound to court under $1,000 bond.

Various articles were found on the persons of the prisoners that will establish their guilt beyond a doubt.

Mr. Radford, who worked up the case and ucceeded in bagging the men, is a deputy of Sheriff Pritchett, and it can be truthfully said of him that there is no better officer in the ounty. He deserves much credit for this iece of work.

Christmas Among the Churches.

Santa Claus was present in full robes and remembered each one with a present, and candies, nuts and ject of matrimony, hunting along the creek fruits were distributed with a generous hand. # A Sorry Spectacle.

It is bad enough for any one to get drunk at any time; it is a disgrace and a degredation, and all who do so, do it of their own free will and accord. No one is compelled to of this place, died in the Lyons View Asylum do so, and any one having sufficient control of his own actions as to be able to find the only places where can be found that which makes him drunk, robs him of his manhood, and reduces him to a level below that of brutes, can just as easily direct his footsteps in a different direction.

But the spectacle of men reeling drunk on the public streets of any place on Christmas day-the birthday of Him who came to redeem all the race, the Christ child, so full of love and sympathy for man as to offer himself as sacrifice that all might be saved-the person who celebrates such an anniversary by making of himself a spectacle so disgusting and indecent, is less to be respected than the cattle that stood in the Manger on that blessguaranteed to give perfect satisfaction or money refunded. #### JOCKEY.

Though we the residents of "The Hub" of East Tennessee are not in Washington County, yet we are so near the border line that your loyal paper is most favorably known among our people, and failing to recognize among your interesting corresterian Sunday School met in the Church and pondents any from this lively little village, around which the entire country seems to swing, we, a charming lass of sixteen sweet summers and a bachelor whose pate reflects in the light, have sharpened our faber together with our wits to give a few happenings hereabouts.

The breeze from the west seems fragrant foretells that one of Greeneville's gallant knights will, before the bells peal forth the dawn of a merry Christmas, lead one of Joekey's most charming young ladies to Hyman's altar where two happy hearts will be made as one. An undercurrent breeze from the east comes frequently perfumed with orange blossoms and everything bids fair that one of Millbrook's most estimable young ladies will soon launch her barque upon the sea of matrimony and sail for a western port. John Ruston of the community concluded to take time by the forelock and on last Sunday took unto himself "a better half" to share his life. G. W. Phillips, Esq., who captivated one of Cocke County's most popular schoolmarms, is expected home with his bride this week. Miss Mary Justice, who has been sojourning for some time on Camp Creek, was married recently to Mr. Hampton. This happy couple will be tendered a reception on Christmas day at the home of her parents. It is gently whispered that a professional, whose shingle used to swing in the breeze wafted across the county line of Greene and Washington, who has overreached his allotted time of "three score and ten" has a matrimonial bee buzzing in his hat, and at present, is en route from a southern town to press his claim for the heart and hand of one of our most necomplished lady friends. We noticed a few days ago our young friend who "wields the birch over the young idea" in one of our rural districts, whose mind has been absorbed in mystery over the perplexing subfor the keys, hoping to solve the mystery. Miss Herrington, of Greeneville, is in the community prospecting for a class in instrumental music. We hope she may succeed, raise the soul above all earthly storms. The school at Clear Spring, under the principalship of Rev. J. H. Harmon and Prof. Hartsell, is progressing nicely. The largest number enrolled for several years. A week's vacation will be given through the holidays which will make the hill put on a lonely appearance. Those present Sunday night enjoyed listening to a most interesting sermon by Rev. Lewis, pastor of Providence Church. Mrs. Rachel Campbell has been quite sick for several days. Miss Pearl Wolf goes to Piney Flats this week to enjoy the holidays among relatives at that place.

Miss Emma Shaver is visiting relatives near Liberty Hill. INO GUESS.

Farmers for Postal Banks.

Much has been heard about the demand of erganized labor for the establishment of a postal savings bank system. Organized farmers are no less emphatic in asking the government to provide safe depositories for persons of small means. Farmers are not so well organized as the workingmen of the cities and do not come together in conventions and associations so frequently, but when they do postal savings banks is generally one of the subjects discussed. At the meeting of the Michigan State Association of Farmers' Clubs at Lansing recently been sick with typhoid fever but is better at a strong demand was made for the establishment of the postal savings bank system, to which all the delegates present gave their approval. On the day previous the state grange had taken similar action. A demand in which the workingmen and farmers unite in making is one to which Congress should give heed.—Chicago Record.

Of Interest to Church People.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly is running series of very interesting as well as instructive articles just now entitled "Religious Deominations of America," written by some prominent member of each denomination. In the December number there was an artiele on the Baptists by Gen. Morgan, which was very readable and instructive, especially to the Baptists. In the January number is a write up of the Presbyterians by Rev. D. J. McMillan, D. Dr. McMillan, it will be remembered was here last October, during the meeting of Synod, and made an address on Missions one evening. The good Doctor is a relative of Hon. Benton McMillin, but says Benton has departed from the old Scotch way of spelling McMillan and spells it McMillin. The Doctor's article on the Presbyterians is one of great historic interest to all Presbyterians and one that members of that particular church will enjoy reading.
